ABOUT THE DEPARTMENT

The Department of English, KAHE, is honoured to maintain the tradition notable for the insight it sparkles on the embryonic contours of English studies. The Department maintains its commitment to quality teaching and research in English studies by encouraging critical and analytical diversity, including interdisciplinary research. The Department of English has always embraced developments at the cutting edge of contemporary humanities while proudly preserving the discipline’s traditional strengths through its wide-ranging and eclectic syllabi and curricula across postgraduate and research programmes of study in English Language Teaching (ELT) and literary and advanced language studies.

In the realm of English language skills, the Department offers instruction in courses on English and hands-on training in teaching English to its Postgraduate students. The Department also provides advanced English skills to all students and the KAHE fraternity through its extensive General English curriculum. It is also on the cutting edge of advancing online education/e-learning by making education accessible, comprehensive, and dynamic for everybody. In addition to the pursuit of the academic study of the English language and its diverse literary traditions around the world, the Department’s general commitment to fostering critical thinking and communication skills, among other employable life skills, goes a long way toward empowering its students with multifaceted future careers in the global workforce.

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

International Conference on Emerging Vistas in English Language and Literature aims to bring together a diverse group of people, including academics, scientists, professionals, and practitioners, to discuss current trends, advancements, and new developments in English Literature, Linguistics, and Language. The event aims to provide a clear understanding of the current state of the field in various countries while also encouraging collaboration and progress. Language and literature are indispensable components of every person’s teaching and learning process. Literature admonition has long been an important part of English education around the world. In today’s world, the emphasis has shifted from teaching literature to teaching language components. A humanities revolution has been sparked by recent approaches to language and literature. English language teaching and literature have both embraced technological approaches. Literature is used in English language teaching to broaden learners’ horizons by exposing them to literary classics, to raise general cultural awareness, to stimulate creative and literary imagination, and to foster literary appreciation and by exploring various fields, learning about the latest research, and discussing implementation ideas, the conference will connect the dots between the theoretical and applied approaches.
